Finding New Ground

For Rodarte designers Kate and Laura Mulleavy's first feature film, it was only natural that they tapped their best friend Kirsten Dunst for the starring role—but they say she's actually the only person who could have played the part. C sat down with the trio to recap their collaboration on Woodshock, which was set deep within an old-growth forest in Northern California

Six pioneers of the modeling industry prove they only get better with age

Lindzi Scharf

◆ In a world where being a male model is seemingly now a rite of passage for any photogenic guy with a social media brand to build, it's easy to forget that back in the '60s and '70s, such a career path was viewed as taboo—and the exclusive domain of women. However, the six gentlemen on these pages, gathered together at The Hollywood Roosevelt hotel by John Pearson (widely regarded as "the world's first male supermodel"), helped to break the mold and change the clichéd view of men in the industry. Proving they still have what it takes, the longtime friends and collaborators—Pearson, Olivier Dehry, Hoyt Richards, Moose Ali Khan, Bruce Hulse and Cameron Albanian—offer today's up-and-coming a lesson in wearing well. "We've got this fundamental history in a business that has changed rapidly," Pearson says. Adds Khan: "The hair is a little grayer, but the sparkle in everyone's eyes, the humility and the charm is the same."
