CATHERINE O'HARA

Catherine O'Hara is a comedy genius. Whether she's mimicking celebs like Bill Clinton, Reagan or Bette Midler, or turning herself into an armoire in Christopher Guest's mockumentaries, or letting loose on Larry David's Curb Your Enthusiasm, the Toronto native invariably leaves audiences laughing with laughter. After serving as an understudy to Gilda Radner with Toronto's Second Step Theatre, O'Hara caught her break acting with the comedy troupe, then moved on with them to play in the acclaimed SCTV show on the tube, which, in turn, led to her winning an Emmy Award and four Emmy nominations for her writing on the series. Her work in such hysterically deadpan David mockumentaries as A Mighty Wind, Best in Show, Waiting for Guffman and For Your Consideration—for which she earned the 2007 National Board of Review Award for Supporting Actress—cemented her place as one of the foremost comic actors of any gender. And here's the fun for an impressive credit list: After Hours, Best in Show, Home Alone and Nightmare Before Christmas, O'Hara did a remarkably focused turn as the unhinged sister of Larry David's buddy on Curb Your Enthusiasm last year, and most recently made a splash in the HBO drama Temple Grandin. She was inducted into Canada's Walk of Fame in 2007.
