Michael Looney's
81 reasons why
 he's on an 81mg
 aspirin regimen.

Michael Looney nearly died of a heart attack while playing basketball. He was only 40. Now he's on a doctor directed 81mg aspirin regimen to prevent another heart attack. And, of course, so he can play a lot more basketball.

Aspirin is not appropriate for everyone, so be sure to talk to your doctor before you begin an aspirin regimen.

Roddy Murphy's

81 reasons why
he's on an 81mg
aspirin regimen.

Roddy Murphy thought he was invincible. Then he had a heart attack. Now he's doing everything he can to prevent another one. Including taking his doctor's advice to take 81mg Bayer Aspirin. It's one thing he can do to help make sure he's able to do all the other things he's got his heart set on.
