Vanity SULL'ONDA

Cabrón e gentiluomo

Esperto di design, diplomatico mancato, patito di politica: il venezuelano EDGAR RAMIREZ, attore del momento, non è il classico belloccio da set. Anche se un giorno un insulto gli ha fatto cambiare strada

MILO VENTIMIGLIA

Milo Ventimiglia's a bit of a conundrum—meaning, everything is just too right with him.

Growing up in a vegetarian household, abstaining from meat simply fits with his lifestyle in sunny Southern California. But it's not just meat that he stays away from—drugs and alcohol are also on his No Can Do List. "I've always been focused and engaged with the things that gave back to me more than the things that put stress and strain on my body. I felt that it served a better purpose."

So many children today are introduced to addictive substances at an early age and wind up sliding down a slippery slope. But Milo refuses to take full credit for his personal accomplishments. "I was lucky enough to have two great parents who hugged and kissed and loved me, but also instilled some really great principles and respect in me that I think created the guy you're talking to today."

off CAMERA

From inconsolable crying at age 12 when he didn't get a part, to filling journals with elaborate fictional backstories of his characters when he did get the part, Michael B. Jordan clearly takes his career very seriously. In Fruitvale Station, his performance shows how that hard work has paid off. The exceptional young actor talks to Off Camera about early experiences on The Wire and Friday Night Lights, about finding the humanity in his characters, and about how he doesn't want to be the next anybody.
