Nick Jonas' Groomer Marissa Machado Reveals What It's Like Working With Him – EXCLUSIVE

By MICHELLE KRAMER | Dec 4, 2019

Do your friends tell you you're "babe obsessed"? Do you follow your favorite celebs every move from their Instagram stories to what they eat? Do you have a crush on them? You're not alone. For 17-year-old Marissa Machado, who has been working with her friend Nick Jonas' groomer for over a year, the answer is yes. "I love him, but I'm not a fan," she says. "I love his music, but I'm not a fan."

It's not just her crush on Jonas that makes her love working with him. It's also the fact that she's been able to work with him for so long. "I've been working with him since he was 15," she says. "I've been with him ever since."

She says that she's been able to work with him for so long because she's been able to keep up with him. "I've been with him ever since he was 15," she says. "I've been with him ever since."

She says that she's been able to work with him for so long because she's been able to keep up with him. "I've been with him ever since he was 15," she says. "I've been with him ever since."

Of course, all friends have their rocky patches, and Machado has with the "One" singer. "I was in a situation where I was the only one in the room," she says. "I was the only one in the room."

Best Beauty at Critics' Choice Awards 2019: Charlize Theron, Connie Britton and More

By MIKE VOLPO | Nov. 14, 2019 3:00 AM

My, oh my, did we have some beauties on the red carpet this weekend!

For those who missed the 2019 Critics' Choice Awards, your favorite stars from the big and small screen came together at the Barker Hanger in Santa Monica for one unforgettable party.

After the awards were handed out and the red carpet closed, pop culture fans couldn't help but talk all things fashion and beauty.

We here at E! News were no different as we praised Charlize Theron's hairstyle and Mandy Moore's beauty eye shadow. And yes, even some gentlemen impressed us with their smooth skin. We see you, Rami Malek.

After some admiring, we came up with a few of our favorite beauty looks of the night.

RAMI MALEK'S SKIN

For the Critics' Choice Awards, groomer Marissa Machado saw the Bohemian Rhapsody star want "with a bit of extra glow." For his skin, Machado used Neutrogena's Total Face Oil for a warm yet natural finish. Rami's look was polished off with the not yet launched Neutrogena Lip Fuel, which kept his lips moisturized all night long.

Gift Pick: V7's 4-in-1 Cleansing Foam, $22

"I recommend V7's 4-in-1 Cleansing Foam for ALL the men in my life. It's the perfect product for busy Dad's. It's multi-use purpose ranges from shampoo to face and body wash all while keeping your skin moisturized. I also love recommending V7's Clean Shave Hydrating Gel Cream. The gel has a cooling effect on the skin that turns to cream. It gives a clean shave as if you've just visited your barber."

The Jonas Brothers Just Gave Fans a Big Reason to See Their Tour at 2019 Billboard Music Awards

By MIKE VOLPO | Nov. 14, 2019 5:12 PM

2019 is the year for the Jonas Brothers.

Before Nick Jonas, Kevin Jonas and Joe Jonas took to the stage and performed at the 2019 Billboard Music Awards in Las Vegas, the band couldn't help but share how excited they were at the future.

Yes, their new music continues to climb the charts. And you better believe fans are excited for a new tour that was just announced. But there's also a new album coming out titled Happiness Begins that truly symbolizes where these artists are in life.

"We worked with a lot of really talented writers and producers. In the sessions, we'd walk in, say we're trying to bottle happiness and bring it to the world," Nick explained on Live From the Red Carpet with Jason Kennedy and Tampa Rad. "There's so much negativity out there and if we can provide a little light in people's eyes, we're doing our job."

He continued, "That's the space we're all in. We're all happy. Living our best life at the moment with each other as family and connecting again with our extended families. We want to give that to the world!"

That joy is certainly seen and felt in their music video for "Sucker." Their significant others Priyanka Chopra, Danielle Jonas and Sophie Turner were all part of the special project.

To say it was a fun day would be an understatement.

"It was a blast. It was the easiest day of work because there was no like, 'Hello, nice to meet you,'" Joe explained to us. "We're literally with our best friend. It was the best music video I think we could have ever wished for."

And when asked why fans are so freaking excited for this next chapter, the guys—who were all groomed by Marissa Machado for the show—gave credit to the music.

"We've heard a lot of stories recently how this has been a soundtrack to a lot of people's lives. For us, you can think of so many bands and artists in your life and you go, 'Yeah I remember this break up. I remember this great day for me.' And I think a lot of these songs might be that for our fans," Joe shared. "So it's just a collaboration as well. Being back with those fans and familiar faces, new faces, too. It does feel like it's going to be the best tour we've ever put on."

Best Beauty at MTV Movie & TV Awards 2019: See Tessa Thompson, Lizzo and More Winning Looks

by MIKE VALPO | May 12, 2019 6:00 PM

Summer is here and Hollywood is bringing the heat to the red carpet!

At the 2019 MTV Movie & TV Awards, your favorite stars from both the movie and TV world came together to celebrate some of the best pop culture moments of the year. But before any award was handed out, there was a special tradition that couldn't be ignored.

Oh yes, the red carpet was open with more than a few glamorous looks.

Instead of focusing on the dresses and accessories, we decided to dive into just some of the hair and makeup looks that left us stunned.

From Tiffany Haddish's "sophisticated bad" to Lula Murty's "berry soft smokey eye," many stars and their glam squads deserve credit for creating some beauty moments.

We got in touch with some of the hairstylists and makeup artists who graciously gave us some secrets into how the looks were made.

Take a look at our gallery below for all the details and how you may be able to recreate the look at home.

ZACHARY LEVI

Celebrity groomer Marissa Machado wanted the award show hair to look like "modern and sharp." In addition to keeping his hair shiny with V76 hair spray and V76 matte clay, Marissa "scanted his skin with a little masculine glow. To get this look, I prepped his skin with Skin Hydrator and finished it off with 'Tom Ford' bronzer gel." Not a bad complement for that handsome smile suit.

Meet the woman behind Rami Malek's Oscar-winning grooming regime

We spoke to the celebrity groomer Marissa Machado to see how she achieved Malek's Academy Award-winning look

Last night was big for Ramzi Mahse. Scooping the coveted Best Actor award at the 2019 Academy Awards, he is the first Arab man to do so and his rise to Oscar glory has been meteoric.

Now cementing himself as certified Hollywood royalty, Malek has perfected his dress sense with ease (and the guidance of celebrity stylist Ilaria Urbinati) and for the 2019 Academy Awards he enlisted the help of Marissa Machado to perfect his look.

Working with the likes of Nick and Joe Jonas, Joe Alwyn and Zachary Levi, Machado has firmly become one of the best male groomers in Tinseltown and she has been on hand throughout awards season to give Malek a helping hand.

With that in mind, we spoke to Machado to see how she achieved an Oscar-worthy look, from what products she used to what she recommends he does post-Oscars afterparty...

GQ: How did you achieve a winning look for Malek?

Marissa Machado: "When I saw Ram's tux, I knew that we needed to keep him looking like the handsome leading man he is, but with a slight edge. We gave him a traditional side part in his hair but with a flair of a cool edge. To touch up parts of his face to even out his skin tone, I used the EX1 Delete Fluide Concealer in shade S.O (ET0.S0, at Boots boots.com). It's great because it provides full coverage, but is so soft and blends in."

great for giving a more even tone. I then continued to perfect Rami's complexion with the EX3 Invisiwear Compact Powder in 4.0 (E1150). At amazon.co.uk, a powder that features EX3's signature yellow-gold pigments, which is perfect for Rami's olive skin tone.

"To keep his glow nice and warm, I used the Kosas Tinted Face Oil for a natural, sun-kissed warmth and finished off the look with Kosas Sport Lip Fuel, a great universal balm to keep lips hydrated for both men and women."

"At the end, I used a folded tissue (in lieu of blotting papers) to dab any excess shine and sweatiness away. It's way more discreet and easy versus blotting papers."

What products did you use on the night?

*EX1 Cosmetics Delete Fluide Concealer in 5.0, EX1 Cosmetics Invisiwear Compact Powder in 4.0, Kosas Tinted Face Oil and Kosas Sport Lip Fuel. I'd recommend all!"

What products favour him best?

"Anything that adds warmth to the skin. I just really love to have his skin glowing and warm - I never want him to look washed out. EX1 is really great for skin tones like his. The pigments in the concealer and the powder are spot-on matches for him, making his skin look fresh and even."

How would you describe his skin?

"Rami's skin is a beautiful olive hue, but with the winter months it's important for me to keep it hydrated and also to even out the tone. The EX1 and Kosas products I used at the 2019 Oscars helped do that, creating the natural feeling of warm, sun-kissed skin by evening out the skin and giving it a very natural-looking finish."

I'm sure he celebrated heavily last night - do you have any advice for post-Oscars skincare?

"With awards season in full swing, late nights can lead to tired, puffy eyes. My go-to quick tip for guys is to first depufling, followed by EXT's Delete Fluid Concealer, which is super natural-looking, with a synthetic brush to create a fresh and rested look. Or simply, after a night of celebration, I recommend some cooling eye gels and a bag of ice on the face to reduce any puffiness. Followed by some Vitamin C Serum and a very hydrating moisturiser."

Did Malek have any skin treatments or routines in the lead up to the Oscars?

"Daily moisturising to keep his face hydrated always."

Does Malek have a particular grooming regime when off duty?

His off duty routine is very minimal. It's as simple as applying a light wax to his damp hair and a daily moisturiser and eye cream I've provided him with.

Saoirse Ronan and Rami Malek's makeup artists dish on their favorite red carpet foundations

The new, high-performance foundations that get stars like Rami Malek and Saoirse Ronan ready for their close-up.

Which product is the building block of every celebrity makeup artist's kit? Foundation. "Foundation should always fuse seamlessly with skin for the most natural look," says makeup artist Laura Mercier, founder of the cult eponymous brand and pioneer of "the flawless face." But how do stars achieve that perfectly glowing, red-carpet-ready skin in the depths of winter, amid a grueling schedule of long-haul flights, awards-show mixers and press junkets? With the help of supercharged, breakthrough formulations that do more than just cover and conceal. Below, six celebrity makeup artists share the foundations they turn to for an award-winning complexion.

1. Kosas Tinted Face Oil

"One of my favorite products for the winter months is Kosas Tinted Face Oil," says makeup artist Marissa Machado, who used a blend of shades four and five on Rami Malek at the Golden Globes to lightly even out tone and build a natural feeling of warm, sun-kissed skin. The serum-like formula contains three types of mineral pigment in a base of skin active botanical oils to instantly even skin tone, minimize pores and erase imperfections. "It's not only hydrating; it's super lightweight so your skin never feels cakey. It's the perfect coverage with the most natural-looking finish."

In an all-black Dior suit and perfectly coiffed hair, actor Rami Malek's look at the 2019 SAG Awards couldn't have been further from Queen's flamboyant frontman Freddie Mercury, but there was one exception: his makeup.

Malek's groomer Marissa Machado wanted to give his skin a kiss of bronze color, swiping on the velvety Kosas Cosmetics Tinted Face Oil before stepping onto the red carpet. "For the SAG Awards, Rami went with a rock and roll vibe," she said. (Fitting.) She used shade 06 — a deep, olive-toned hue — of the formula, which blends three types of mineral pigments with botanical oils to even out his skin tone. The results were so good, you'll barely notice he was wearing anything at all.

Easy come, easy go, now you know his secret to the SAG Awards show.

The Cool No-Makeup Makeup Products Used on Men on the Oscars Red Carpet

By ARANDA MONTELE

The Oscars red carpet is not typically the venue for no-makeup makeup looks... unless you're a man, that is. Indeed, though it may seem like male celebs show up to award season with innately flawless skin and filled-in brows, their perfected visages come courtesy of a few clever products that offer truly natural results—because heaven forbid it seem obvious that a man is wearing makeup. (Oh, standards of gender presentation. A discussion for a different day.)

Anyway, not every makeup product marketed as offering a natural or undetectable effect delivers on its promises, but we were seriously impressed with the cool products celebrity makeup artists used on famous men like Rami Malek and Henry Golding on the Oscars and SAG Awards carpets this year. If you're into the look of perfect skin and stanced brows without looking like you have any makeup on at all, keep scrolling to check out the beauty products and advice that will make you look as low-key flawless as an A-list dude.

"After seeing Rami's Saint Laurent Tux I immediately knew that I needed to keep his look classic: Rami's handsome looking a cool vibe," said makeup artist Marissa Machado of the Best Actor winner's Oscars beauty look. Machado used the buzzy non-toxic brand Kosas Cosmetics—its hydrating Tinted Face Oil in shades 05 and 06 "to create a natural sun-kissed warmth" and its Kosasport LipFuel in Baseline, "which has been [Rami's] trusted lip hydrator all award season" and will be available soon.

For skincare prep, Rami received a facial from Beverly Hills esthetician Cynthia Franco before hitting the red carpet.

T3 PROS: HOW TO WASH YOUR HAIR

Share

You've been washing your hair for years, but you might be doing it wrong. We asked our T3 Pros for tips on how to wash your hair — the correct way.

Jessica Gibson, T3Pro

"Correctly washing and conditioning your hair is very important. I usually tell my clients to wash & condition every other day unless they have dry texture. In that case one a week is fine. You should always start with a shampoo that's right for your hair texture. Lather up and rinse. Add conditioner to smooth the cuticle and detangle. I highly recommend the T3 Source Shower Head, it gives you the clearest water possible which makes a big difference in your hair and skin's texture and shine."

Marissa Machado, T3Pro

"Washing your hair is something we do on autopilot, the truth is most of us are doing it incorrectly. Rather than aggressively scrubbing your head it is best to lay your head back and let the water rise through thoroughly."

Amey Kishorewaril, T3Pro

"Great hair styling begins with a proper wash. I'm a big proponent of washing and conditioning hair everyday especially if you are active, work out and in the summer months, if your hair is especially coarse, curly or thick a good rinse and conditioner is all you might need to tame your hair. Get hair wet and use a small amount of shampoo focusing mostly at the roots. Add water to emulsify, make sure to rinse very well. Add conditioner to the ends of the hair and let it sit for 10 minutes. When it's time to rinse, use a shower head to use filtered water or spring water like Evian to prep. This is why I'm excited about the T3 Source Shower Head because it filters out harmful chemicals and chlorine, making your hair shinier and the end result — more beautiful hair."

Michalangelis Arevalo, T3Pro

"Your hair should be rinsed in lukewarm water before it is washed in order to loosen the oil and dirt on your scalp. Depending on how much hair you have, you should be shampooing twice a week. The key is to alternate between two different types of shampoo to clarify and cleanse the hair shaft. It's important to invest in a good shampoo. Instead of conditioning, I think it's better to use a masque, comb it through the hair with the wet brush, letting it absorb for a few minutes, then wash it out completely. Additionally, the minerals in our shower water can be so intense on our hair."

and Nick).

Ask Machado exactly how grooming for men differs from women and she'll say that, once upon a time, it was everything from the neck up (facial hair trimming, brow tweezing, skin maintenance, beard combing, hair shaving, etc.) Now, it's a head-to-toe job. "Say a client is shooting Men's Health tomorrow, and I know they're going to be shirtless. I'll go to their house the night before and spray tan them," Machado explains. "The one thing that used to make me a little bit crazy was people would say to me that grooming men means my job is so much easier, but that's not always the case."

We asked Machado to give us a closer look at what her job is actually like — and with all eyes on the youngest (and most recently engaged) Jonas brother, we talked a lot about Nick. Keep reading to find out the secret behind his trendy Met Gala haircut, the body foundation that makes his chest gleam, and the contouring trick she uses for his abs — yes, abs.

Nick Jonas shares his grooming secrets and we're sure that these must have swept Priyanka Chopra off her feet

Nik Jonas talks about his grooming routine and fragrance launch

Written by Katie Hasty | Photos by Ethan S. / Getty Images | 2018 Met Gala | 10/10/18

Nick Jonas has become quite the man of the hour, courtesy our very own desi girl, Priyanka Chopra. However, seems like his life is swinging in the upward direction and his engagement is not the only thing that calls for celebrations. The multi-talented individual has just released his first-ever fragrance with menswear icon John Varvatos. Jonas has already made a mark for himself in the entertainment and fashion industry and this fragrance launch will indeed send his fan into a major frenzy.

Teen Vogue recently got into a conversation with Nick and spoke at length about his latest collaboration with the brand, his sibling's reaction to the scent and about his new music. When asked about his collaboration with Varvatos, the young singer said,

It is so exciting. The beauty of this collaboration and partnership with John across the board was really an organic thing. He further narrated the story of how they were seated next to each other at a party approximately a year ago. He further elaborated saying that they clicked immediately and spoke about everything from fashion to music to life. Nick revealed how he was always fascinated with fragrance and wanted to learn about the whole process of it. He also revealed that for the creation of the scent, he let John take the lead to a certain extent, but it was a collaborative process.

When the 'Find You' singer was asked if he has given the perfume to his brothers to test, he says, he chuckles and replies, 'No, I always try to be selfish for as long as possible. I'm still trying to be the best smelling man in the room. I'll give them a bottle eventually though.'

Nick works with the most talented team including stylist Avo Yermagan and groomer Marissa Machado who help him get that perfect red carpet look. He gave out details of the results he follows when he steps out for a public appearance. The youngster Jonas brother accepted that red carpet appearances can be quite pressurizing especially during awards season. His rituals usually include waking up early in the morning, going in for a perfect workout and then getting in the sauna to get a nice sweat going and then finally a really good moisturizer.

Nick Jonas Rides the Subway to the 2018 Met Gala

Some celebrities, like Katy Perry, required special modes of transportation to get to the 2018 Met Gala in New York City Monday. Other people, like Nick Jonas, were less high-maintenance. (We're not throwing shade at Perry; how else was she going to bring wings that span six feet?)

For a mere $2.75, Jonas swiped his MetroCard and took the subway to 77th St. and Lexington Ave., just blocks away from the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Jonas' stylist, Avo Yermagan, dressed him in a single-breasted shawl lapel tuxedo, made in black silk brocade with 24K gold thread hand-topstitching. Jonas completed his look with a white poplin shirt with gold and onyx buttons, black velvet slippers and a black velvet belt, and the singer added some swag with a diamond, gold and onyx jewels.

He shared photos and videos from his impromptu subway shoot on Instagram and Instagram Stories. Marissa Machado used V76 by Vaughn products to groom Jonas for Fashion's Biggest Night, and barber Ronnie McCoy III gave him a fresh buzz, making not a hair was out of place.

The "Home" singer kicked back at The Mark Hotel—the same spot where Bradley Cooper, Kim Kardashian, Issa Rae, Irina Shayk and more stars were spotted getting dressed up for the gala.

Watch Nick Jonas Get Met Gala-Ready: Push-Ups, Pizza, and Dreams of Rihanna

NEW YORK, N.Y. (Vogue) —

Yesterday, just hours before entering the Costume Institute's new exhibition, "Hercules: Bodies, Fashion and the Catholic Imagination," Nick Jonas is the picture of ease at The Mark Hotel. "Gorgeous day," he remarks over coffee. "Prepare to be amazed." The Texan-born singer, clad in a white bathrobe, is carrying the calm that comes with his third consecutive Met Gala. "As a man, there's not a whole lot you have to do to prepare for these things," he says, pointing out that a "line-in mannequin" received days before was nearly half the battle. The rest of the night's success, he has learned, lies in a "state of mind, and a really good haircut."

Yesterday, just hours before entering the Costume Institute's new exhibition, "Hercules: Bodies, Fashion and the Catholic Imagination," Nick Jonas is the picture of ease at The Mark Hotel. "Gorgeous day," he remarks over coffee. "Prepare to be amazed." The Texan-born singer, clad in a white bathrobe, is carrying the calm that comes with his third consecutive Met Gala. "As a man, there's not a whole lot you have to do to prepare for these things," he says, pointing out that a "line-in mannequin" received days before was nearly half the battle. The rest of the night's success, he has learned, lies in a "state of mind, and a really good haircut."

Celebrity groomer Marissa Machado keeps Jonas's closely cropped fade in place with a spritz of YS Hair and Sassy Tonic and a pinch of Moroccan Tangi Clay, as well as a dab of cream around his eyes to ensure he won't look "too tired." To get that vital "slight pump going on" beneath his Dolce & Gabbana monogrammed Met Gala suit to show an in-between mix of push-ups is in order. "Hello, Rihanna," he says as he steadily pushes his toned arms up and down. While it may be more of a mental exercise than anything else, the added strength certainly doesn't hurt, especially when tasked with pulling off a 24-karat gold-embroidered jacket hat into the night.

After a meeting of Costume National's Scott Brincat, the singer arrives at his biggest decision of the night: how to tie his gold cravatte molle, or no bow tie? "Together, it's Godfather III," warns Jonas's stylist, Avo Yermagan. "Without, it's Godfather I." And with that, he slips off the accessory and out of the hotel for some property maintenance: two slices of pepperoni pizza. The "epic" journey to the gala is only a few subway stops and ten minutes away. What could be better than skipping Fifth Avenue rush hour traffic? After all, he says, "Tonight is all about elegance."
