W OUR PICKS

This currency wallet has four partitions so you don't grab euros when you need yen.

So you want your laptop, files, and a paperback after take-off? Here is a sleeve with nooks for all.

British designer Margo's case has pockets for an iPad mini and an old-fashioned journal.

Cord taco: a handy wallet for loose earbuds.

Baggu's pouch corrals coins, lip balm, and keys—basically all the random miscellany that tends to go MIA.

THERE'S A BAG FOR THAT

We've come a long way from basic duffels and rollies. These new pouches and cases ensure everything has its place.

—ANDREW RICHALE

All you need at the gate is a Tumi pouch, which holds a phone, passport, and boarding pass.

FROM THE EDITOR

In the AFAR pop-up store, the artist Seth Damm displayed rope necklaces and Akiho Graham sold pottery.

At the London Plane, a cafe and shop, I bought handmade caramels and enamel cups.

The industrial designers Jacoli & McAllister make jewelry and objects for the home, such as this brass bottle opener.

E. Smith Mercantile sells a variety of cocktail bitters, including a smoky blend with a hint of orange peel.

Paper Hammered the revival of letterpress printing in Seattle. They make whimsical coasters, notebooks, and other paper products.

THE SPIRIT OF SEATTLE

AT AFAR, WE BELIEVE in celebrating wildly ambitious ideas and plucky people. (We are the ones who started a travel magazine in 2009!) This spring, when I traveled to Seattle for our fourth AFAR Experiences event, we were surrounded by innovators.

The chef and restaurateur Renee Erickson, whose empire includes the award-winning oyster bar The Walrus and the Carpenter, produced our opening night party at Pike Place Market by inviting in her favorite local purveyors. Megan Jasper brought a group of us into the headquarters of Sub Pop, the influential record label where she serves as executive vice president. Author—and early Amazon employee—Langdon Cook took us on a foraging expedition through rainy Seward Park. And Margaret O'Mara, a professor of history at the University of Washington, spoke to our group about the climate of entrepreneurship that defines Seattle's past, present, and future.

In Seattle there's a palpable sense that people are driven by their passions, which more often than not blossom into successful businesses. In this issue, we set out to find the people who bring that spirit to the world of travel.

In "The 2014 Travel Vanguard," on page 67, we cover the people and ideas reframing travel today: the disruptors and mavericks who are turning cruise ships into boutique hotels, teaching us how to be more conscientious and thoughtful travelers, and flying amateur astronauts (like you!) into space. The common thread across this group of change-makers: passion and an unbridled confidence in their ideas. Much like what we witnessed in Seattle. These are our kind of people.

TRAVEL WELL,

Julia
