Jane got a lot of pricey image consulting in our September article, and here we put it to use. How'd we do, Jesse Ventura? "Pandering to every special interest group is absolutely correct," Jesse says. "But I'd eliminate the nuns."

"JANE PRATT LOOKS LIKE THE PERFECT PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE"

Scary, yes. Ann Coulter, Britney Spears, Howard Dean, John Kerry, Pink, Nancy Pelosi and Jesse Ventura weigh in on our boss's "campaign."

PHOTOGRAPHY BY DEAN KAUFMAN

Ann Coulter, conservative political pundit: Sitting around worrying about whether there are enough women in politics is like asking whether Elizabeth Taylor will die fat or thin. Who cares? Jesse Ventura, former Minnesota governor: Jane's chances stink, but if she were running I'd pick her over a Democrat or Republican. I just wouldn't want her to sell her soul to special interest groups. All endorsements mean is that somebody's getting paid off. They don't get you elected. People do.

Jane's communication aide, Nancy Millar: Yeah, but I've been watching Howard Dean and Dick Gephardt hog all the union ones and I feel, well, kind of jealous.

Donna Brazile, Al Gore's former campaign manager: You can't just go out there and say, "Hey, I want to get the Sierra Club endorsement," when you're not talking about the environment.

Roselyn O'Connell, president, National Women's Political Caucus: People are too busy to pay attention. They'll go to a Web site like ours and go, "They're backing Jane Pratt. She must be good."

Communication aide Nancy: So are you with us?

Political muscлер Roselyn: We've already endorsed Carol Moseley Braun. Sorry.

Kelly Hobbs, spokesperson, National Rifle Association: Frankly, President Bush has been a strong supporter of Second Amendment rights.

Pink: I'd vote for Jane.

Alicia Keys: Sure. Any woman who can put together a magazine with plenty of gossip—I mean, that's all we need in a president.

Britney Spears: Wait...who's running for president?

Jane's campaign manager, Jeff Johnson: Even more important than Britney's stamp of approval, though, is cashola. We'd better start selling our souls, I mean, "fund-raising."

Campaign vet Donna: Fund-raising is almost 30 to 40 percent of a candidate's day. Any candidate that's not up to the task of ▶
