WHAT TO BUY, DO & KNOW NOW

Yoga Skin

This is skin that's glistening, glowing, shyly flushed, created by blending liquid foundation, face oil and liquid highlighter, topping it with light concealer on blemishes, then applying cream blusher or bronzer.

To pull off this look in our climate, makeup artist Larry Yeo says to skip the face oil (too greasy) and liquid highlighter (too unforgiving on not-perfect skin).

Start with a radiance-boosting primer to lightly smooth pores and add a subtle sheen. Layer on a foundation with a glowy finish. Last, use a big, fluffy brush to dust powder over the oilier parts of your face. — CT

Makeup used:
Chanel Duo Bronze et Lumiere in #307 Clair, $103;

Stylo Ombre et Contour in #222 Pure Flesh, $53; and Rouge Coco Flash in #212 Contraste, $52.

Sportify Bare Skin with Nude-bronze Makeup

It's a toastier, more outdoorsy version of everybody's favourite nude look and gives skin a healthy touch of colour.

The look: Natural with a touch of gold, so your face doesn't look too bare or washed out, says makeup artist Alex T.

Getting it right: The idea is to warm the complexion. No megawatt highlighters or heavy use of sculpting powder a la Instagram makeup.

Go for:

Matte or slightly shimmery bronze. Alex says to use a soft, fluffy brush (not a densely packed one), which makes blending easier as it doesn't deposit too much product.

The HW pick:

Chanel's new Duo Bronze et Lumiere palette, which has a matte bronzer and a pearlescent highlighting powder. Dust the bronzer onto cheeks, forehead and nose, then blend out at the edges with the highlighter.

Or mix bronzer and highlighter together and apply lightly over the face for a sun-kissed glow. — GYH

Sheer Shimmer

Hello, grown-up glitter eyeshadow. It's more sophisticated, less disco, and doesn't emphasise the fine lines around your eyes. Any colour works - blue, pink, purple, brown, even teal green. We recommend a light hand for a soft shimmery wash over the lids, but feel free to build the colour for more edginess. We like Nars Duo Eyeshadow in Kuala Lumpur ($52).
