THE COLLECTIONS

TRAVEL COVERS
On these pages, each of 2014's best-selling men's wearers of four seasons ago is featured in a label of the year—the designer who is defining how we are dressing (or, should be dressing, anyway). Starting with...

RALPH LAUREN

There are countless iconic, rugged denim labels out there, but this year Ralph reclaimed his reputation: (come with pointed jeans, ranch hand shirts, and one particularly bulky Marlboro Man) and one particularly iconic item from the catalog. If it has a pocket, it's Ralph Lauren. (If you're 75 or older, this is all an unfortunately as Pratt does here.)

PONY UP A LITTLE EXTRA BOUGH.
Yes, you can buy a trendy fast-fashion suit for just a few hundred bucks. But it's probably only last you a season. Call yourself one in the next spin instead and it'll look sharper, fit better, and live in your closet—and on your back—for years.

...BUT NOT TOO MUCH EXTRA
These days, you simply don't need to drop the GDP of a small nation on a suit. The $1,000 one on the opposite page has a narrow lapel and slim jacket, and it looks like a suit four times the price.
