WELCOME TO THE ISSUE

"I THINK YOUR imagination is your moly" may just be our favorite among many delicious Diana Vreeland aphorisms. With the new cycle of late, we could all use a dreamy summer holiday right about now. Whether or not you're fortunate enough to escape HRL to a life unplugged, come away with us on a flight of fashion fantasy. We'll visit some of the actual locations from the classic 1985 film Out of Africa for a safari-themed shoot in Kenya (page 138), hop on the Marrakech Express for a sparkling celebration of luck with Van Cleef & Arpef in Morocco (page 96), and explore fall's neutrals in the sunny Spanish port city of Cadix (page 124). Enjoy the issue. ■

TOAST OF THE TOWN

Here's to Marc Jacobs. In his last collection for Louis Vuitton, the designer created a miniature reinterpretation of one of the house's most storied styles, the Noé. The original, introduced in 1932, was custom-made for a champagne supplier to tote its products (the bag accommodated five bottles) in high style. Bottoms up! ■

BOHEMIAN RHAPSODY

When it comes to creating an It bag, Chloé designer Clare Waight Keller knows just what will set hearts aflutter. The French label's latest, the Inez—which features the maison's signature studs and a handmade leather tassel and can be worn over the shoulder or cross-body—was named after photographer Inez Van Lamsweerde. "She has the dreamy, unconventional character of the women I love from the '70s, and she became an influence for me on the aesthetic of the design," says Keller. Here's to the newest must-have. ■

CLEAR WINNERS

September is when most of us start to seriously revamp our wardrobes, so what better month to debut our new and improved Shops guide to the season? There's plenty to look forward to, from editors' current obsessions to ELLE's new collaboration with cult blog The Coverage. It's all about showing you not only the perfect items to buy for fall but also how to put them all together—so that you, like model Kel Marley (page 412), can master the how'd-she-do-that art of personal style. Our aim, as always: to present the best of fashion as clearly as possible. And speaking of clarity, how about these transparent stamers from Chanel and Gianvito Rossi?

Leather pump: GIANTO BOSSI, #78, collection of Bergdorf Goodman, $92. Flatfish evening dress: CALVIN KLEIN, price on request; at select Chanel boutiques nationwide.

Find invaluable tips on how to navigate the season by style at ELLE.com. EDITED BY JOAN PALEY

VISION

SHOP NOW ▶

With spring in full swing, the old adage has never been more true—we're seeing things through rose-colored glasses. And yellow and blue and green, thanks to Gucci's vibrant spectrum of tinted sunnies. Blending the brand's signature glamour with the ebullient spirit the season inspires, this new capsule collection is the perfect mix of sensual glam and California cool. We'll take one in every color, please.

STYLIST'S TIP
Whether you're beachside and bikini-clad or strolling the city streets, exotic shades make any outfit feel a bit more fun.

loads of love

You'll soon begin to wonder how someone so small creates so much laundry! To make the best of this task, you'll want a detergent specially designed for babies. One great choice is Dreft, as regular detergents may be too harsh on your little one's sensitive skin. Specially formulated for the unique needs of baby's items and the toughest stains, it's no wonder Dreft is the number one laundry detergent brand most recommended by pediatricians. For mom's clothes and other members of the household, brands like Tide have been battling dirt for decades. So, be sure to stock up at Babies®R'Us, so you'll be prepared to face each wonderfully messy day.
