YOUR GUIDE TO BROWS THAT WOW

WHEN THEY LOOK GOOD, YOU LOOK GORGEOUS — SO SHOW YOUR EYEBROWS THE LOVE!

THE UBER BROW

This is the brow at its most high-fashion. "It's very dark and very graphic," says Lisa. "It's not even attempting to look natural." Suitable candidates for this look: anyone with decent-sized brows. Blondes and ringy brows need not apply.

Do it yourself Brush the hairs out of the way, then start fringing in the base of the brows with a damp brush dipped in eyebrow powder. "Get the powder right onto the skin beneath the hairs," advises Lisa. Brush the brows back into place, then continue using your wet brush and powder to comb over the hairs. "Go nearer to the nose than you normally would," says Lisa. "Even fill in the arch — you want a strong, straighter, graphic brow." ▶

Poor eyebrows! They are the true Cinderella of the face. While the eyes and the lips get to go to the ball dolled up in all their finery, more often than not, the brows are left neglected and unloved. Big, big mistake. "Brows are incredibly important," says Lisa Eldridge, the makeup artist who plucked, shaped, brushed and filled the brows in this story. "The brows lift and frame the face — they pull everything together." In fact, a well-groomed, well-defined brow can do so much for a face that you actually need less make-up. By the same token, bad brows can wreak havoc on the prettiest face. "If you get your brow shape wrong your whole face will change," warns Lisa. "You can go from looking chic to cheap." What shape is right? Generally a variation on the brow shape you were born with. "It might be fashionable for brows to be thicker right now," says Lisa. "But it's like everything — if you follow fashion extremes things can go horribly wrong." So be aware of what's in, but do what suits your face. Lisa agrees. "A classic brow shape that's right for you will never go out of style."
