schedule and, you know, a toddler is dreadfully hectic, Smulders isn't one to moan. Instead, she happily chats about taking Shaclyn to Albuquerque, N.M., for a month to film The Avengers. "She was such a trooper, but it turns out that my child is not a desert child. She was practically picked up by the wind. It was so cool introducing her to such a beautiful place, though."

Watching her kid get buffeted in the face with desert sand doesn't sound particularly romantic, but Smulders seems completely taken by the place. Actually, she has loved any sort of travel ever since she Ping-Ponged around the world as a teenage model. After getting into the biz at 12 years old, Smulders soon started working in New York, France, Japan and Germany during summers. "At first I
